

ENVIRONMENTALLY STABLE HIGH RESISTIVITY CARBON FIBER AND METHOD OF PRODUCING

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A carbon composite construction includes carbon fibers having a controlled level of electrical resistance. The controlled level of electrical resistance is achieved by subjecting the carbon fibers to a predetermined stress level during the stabilization process. The carbon fibers produced by this method are blended with nonconductive fibers to produce the composite construction.